

LMU Family of Schools Participates in Building Bridges for Others

On Friday, December 4th, the LMU Family of Schools participated as volunteers in Building Bridges for Others, hosted by LMU Career Development Services.

Held at Westchester High School, the goal of Building Bridges for Others was to bring together elements of the LMU community (LMU staff & faculty, Employers and Students), to help inform WHS students of career building resources and sharing knowledge about college. One aspect was providing resume building tips, resume critiquing, and interviewing techniques to several students in the business courses. In addition, the LMU community will be able to provide information on "life in college" and increase high school student perspectives in attending college. This program was a rewarding experience and it brought the essence of "we as community" together to make a difference with our future leaders.
